Library

As a student at the University of Leeds you'll have access to one of the largest libraries in the UK, with nearly 4000 study places ranging from silent individual study to vibrant group work areas. English stock can be found in more than one of the libraries on campus, and all have wifi so you can access plenty of material online. As well as a host of electronic resources at your fingertips we’ve also got nearly 3 million books.

The library website gives you easy access to all these resources, and you can request and renew your books through the website too: http://library.leeds.ac.uk/

Library Quick Start is our popular online guide to the Library. It is aimed at all new students and provides the essential information you need to start using the Library and its resources. The topics covered include finding material using Search@Library, accessing e-books, finding reading lists and support for developing your academic skills, as well as general information about library services. It can be found at http://library.leeds.ac.uk/quickstart/

Skills@Library

The library website also links to Skills@Library offering enhanced academic skills support for many aspects including reading, writing, time management, referencing etc. Through Skills@Library you can access the Flying Start webpages – a resource providing information and activities. Flying Start will help you to adapt to being a learner at university particularly important when you first start your course.
